Over 70 HK university students visit a Shenzhen factory under the FHKI “HK Students’ Visit to HK-PRD Industries” Programme

The Federation of Hong Kong Industries (FHKI) Chairman Prof Daniel M Cheng, Vice-Chairmen Jimmy Kwok and Dr Jack Yeung led a delegation of 70 students from eight Hong Kong universities to visit EVA Precision Industrial Holdings Limited’s Shenzhen factory today (Wednesday). The visit aims to help young students get a grasp of the operation of modern factories and how efficiency can be enhanced through automation. The FHKI also invited some young industrialists to share with the students the progress of Industry 4.0, as well as the prospects of career development in the industrial sector.

The tour was the first activity under the FHKI’s “Hong Kong Students’ Visits to HK-PRD Industries” programme. Programme Chairman cum PRD Council Chairman Jimmy Kwok said the programme received generous donations from FHKI and PRD Council members.

“This FHKI initiative aims to provide opportunities for Hong Kong students to visit modern factories with advanced equipment and sophisticated management systems to enable them to get an understanding of Hong Kong’s industrial innovation and technological advancement, and to promote exchanges between students and industrialists.”

To promote the programme, the FHKI invites university students to join visits to factories of Hong Kong enterprises or other renowned Mainland enterprises in the Pearl River Delta region.

Established in 1993, EVA is a high-tech conglomerate covering the manufacture of office automation equipment and related product assembly services. It also produces automobile moulds and components together with R&D and production of smart devices. EVA Chairman Zhang Hwo Jie pointed out that as industrial initiatives like ‘Industry 4.0’ and ‘Made in China 2025’ roll out, many enterprises are actively expanding into areas such as information technology, electronics, medical equipment, and even design and creative technology. More young talents with professional training are needed to join the industrial sector. The FHKI’s programme will enable young people to discover the room for their career development and will help drive re-industrialisation forward.

The FHKI also invited several young industrialists, including the FHKI’s Young Executive Council (YEC) Chairman Gary Lau, Vice-Chairman Bryant Chan, Executive Committee member Ben Yeung, 2016 Young Industrialist Award winner Shing Hing Industrial Limited CEO Jennifer Tsui and startup enterprise aniWEAR CEO Dr Joe Mak, to join today’s visit and share with students their experiences in the industrial sector.

Ms Tsui and Dr Mak shared their insights on enterprise operations, manpower needs
